Mellon, Edge and Briand Smooth Difficulties in All-Night Session Friday; Meet Again Today.

BY JOSEPH E. SHARKEY.

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)
PARIS, July 4.—(Saturday.)—A satisfactory progress was achieved last night at a meeting by the French and American representatives discussing President Hoover's moratorium proposal, the American embassy informed the Associated Press early today.

No complete accord was reached, it was indicated by an official statement issued at the end of the meeting, but the statement describes the points which remain unsettled as minor points.

Of four points outstanding, it was learned this morning on reliable authority, two have now been eliminated and two remain to be settled.

These two unsettled points, one of which is believed to concern the question of the guarantee fund to be deposited by France with the Bank of International Settlements in the event of a German moratorium under the French plan, will be discussed by the French cabinet today.

The cabinet's decision on the two points will be reported to another meeting between the French and American negotiators tonight.

Last night's meeting, which began at 9:30 p. m. and lasted well into the morning, was regarded by the Americans as a sort of whittling down process. Confidence was expressed this morning that this whittling will continue until a complete agreement is fashioned.

Time for Germany.
It was believed that an agreement was reached regarding the number of years during which Germany may refund the annuities suspended under the Hoover plan by a compromise between the French suggestion of five years and the American suggestion of twenty-five.

There is a clear allusion to the Young plan in the final paragraph of the official statement issued at the end of the meeting, which says that an accord should be achieved soon on the technical and financial part of the negotiations, provided other interested powers adhere to such an agreement.

This section of the statement is regarded as expressing a frank realization that any element of the Franco-American accord which affects the Young plan must later be referred to the approval of the signatories of that instrument.

This refers, particularly to the question of the guarantee fund, which was made clear tonight that France now feels it should not be necessary for her to deposit 500,000,000 gold marks (about $125,000,000) with the Bank for International Settlements in the event that Germany requests a moratorium after 1932.

France has pointed out that the Young plan gives the world bank the option as to whether the guarantee fund should be deposited.

Americans Stand.
It was learned that considerable difficulty was experienced in drawing up the official statement, and that the American delegates were inclined to prefer the word "secondary" instead of the "points of less importance" which was used to describe the points still unsettled.

Ambassador Edge emerged from the conference with his customary broad smile and Mr. Mellon with his characteristic silence. The latter is confronted with the probability that his holiday in southern France will have to be postponed for several days. The dominating note after the meeting was that the minor or secondary

MELTON NEW HEAD OF GEORGIA LEGION

Newspaperman Is Commander; Mrs. Toomey Auxiliary President.

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 3.—Quimby Melton, of Griffin, was elected commander of the Georgia department of the American Legion late Friday afternoon. Mrs. J. M. Toomey, of Atlanta, was elected president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the organization.

Election of new officers was the outstanding event of Friday, the second day of the legion and auxiliary conventions here, which are to continue through Saturday. Winding up of business sessions today left Saturday free for the frolicking of the "Forty and Eight," fun unit of the legion.

Other officers elected by the legion, in addition to Commander Melton, were James A. Bankston, Atlanta, re-elected treasurer; Dr. Joseph Toomey, Atlanta, re-elected historian; Rev. Earl Dunn, of Butler, chaplain, and Edgar B. Dunlap, of Gainesville, re-elected national executive committee.

Frank Kempton, of Atlanta, was named as alternate to Colonel Dunlap. Officers of the auxiliary, in addition to Mrs. Toomey, are Miss Leila Sumner, of Atlanta, first vice president; Mrs. Llewellyn Holt, second vice president; Mrs. Fuller Callaway, S. LaGrange, chaplain; Mrs. Ernest Harris, historian; Mrs. E. F. Travis, Griffin, national executive committee woman, and Mrs. Harvey Kennedy, Barnesville, alternate.

Commander Melton is publisher and editor of The Griffin News, one of Georgia's most successful newspapers. During the war he served with the Eight-second Division, seeing much active service in France. He was a graduate of the first officers' training school at Fort McPherson, and at the time of the armistice held the rank of major.

Prior to the war, Commander Melton was in charge of the arrangements for the funeral of a body. Complete arrangements will be announced later.

ATLANTA WOMAN IS KILLED IN CRASH NEAR HOGANSVILLE

Miss Mary Cayce, Legion Head, Crushed to Death; Mr. and Mrs. Bombardier Badly Injured.

Miss Mary Cayce, 1027 St. Charles avenue, Atlanta, was killed, almost instantly, and Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Bombardier, of 891 Virginia avenue, N. E., and their guest, Mrs. Myrtice A. Clay, of Indian Springs, were severely injured when the automobile driven by Mr. Bombardier, in which the party of four were returning from a meeting of the American Legion at LaGrange, overturned near Hogansville Friday night.

The automobile got out of control on the wet pavement, skidded from the road and overturned, it was reported. Miss Cayce, whose skull was crushed, was removed to the funeral parlors of Askew Brothers, in Hogansville, and then was brought to Spring Hill, Atlanta.

Her left leg badly fractured, it was thought by physicians at LaGrange hospital that Mrs. Bombardier would have to undergo an amputation. In addition she sustained bruises and a severe shock-up, and was believed to be suffering from shock. Mr. Bombardier was less seriously injured. His tongue was painfully cut, and his head and body were badly bruised, but his condition was not thought to be serious.

Mrs. Clay, connected with the New York Life Insurance Company here, had a fracture of at least one rib, a deep cut over her left eye and possible internal injuries. She was not believed to be seriously injured, but was placed under observation.

Miss Cayce had been elected president of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion of Atlanta on Thursday, to succeed Mrs. Bombardier, and had been active in the Atlanta Women's Club. She was co-chairman with Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, of the club's committee for the blind, and before that was co-chairman with Mrs. Hazzard, of the auditorium committee. Two years ago she had been assistant treasurer of the Women's Club. She attended the All Saints' church and was prominent in social and civic circles.

Surviving are her mother, Mrs. S. J. Cayce; a brother, E. G. Cayce, and a sister, Miss Dagna Cayce. H. M. Harrison is in charge of the arrangements.

Funeral services will be held Monday and interment will be in West cemetery. The body will be taken to the funeral home of the American Legion, Atlanta Chapter No. 1, and the honor guard will be selected from the same group. The officers and members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Atlanta American Legion have been requested to attend the funeral in a body. Complete arrangements will be announced later.

YOUTH IS DROWNED IN CHATTAHOOCHEE

Otis Aiken, 18, Slips Into River; Rescue Efforts Prove Futile.

Slipping from a rock into the waters of the Chattahoochee river Friday afternoon, Otis Aiken, 18, of 578 English avenue, unable to swim, was drowned despite the efforts of Hoyt Parker, his brother-in-law, to save him. Attempts at resuscitation failed, and the body was removed to the establishment of J. Austin Dillon & Company.

According to Parker, he and Aiken and a company of younger boys went to get Parker's boat in a part of the river known as the narrows, just above the mouth of Long Island creek, between Buckhead and Bolton. The small boys suggested a swim, Parker said, and the party repaired to a cluster of rocks among which the river is comparatively shallow.

Aiken, who had gotten wet while going after the boat, had removed all clothing but his underwear. Parker said, and though he was unable to swim, joined the boys on the rocks. While there his foot slipped and he fell into the water, about 12 feet deep at that point, according to Parker.

The latter pulled him back onto the rock, where his spluttering attempts to clear his head excited the rescue party. Parker said, with his inability to swim.

Early reports that Aiken, gassed by rescuers, had been pulled back into the water, were contradicted by Parker, who also denied that any

More Than 25 Persons Hurt in Train Wreck

Chief Beavers Issues Warning As City Looks to Quiet Holiday

Prefaced with a solemn injunction from Chief of Police James L. Beavers to "keep out of jail," and other from the Atlanta Motor Club to "keep out of hospitals," the glorious Fourth of July dawns this morning with Atlanta determined, as usual, to do pretty much as they please. The right to get in jail or a hospital, after all, is one of those inalienable things granted by the American constitution, itself an outgrowth of the Declaration of Independence, born on this day 133 years ago.

But the bulk of the population will hold to safer pleasures than the shooting of firecrackers and driving on the inside of a left-hand curve, according to pre-holiday indications. The golf courses, the swimming pools, the midway attractions at Lakewood and the theaters are all planning to entertain capacity crowds, while apartment dwellers, along Peachtree, may hear a series of national airs played on the new chimes in the First Presbyterian church by Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, organist.

In most other quarters, however,

Pope Pius Raps Mussolini; Denies Church in Politics

VATICAN CITY, July 4.—(Saturday.)—In a vigorously worded encyclical letter Pope Pius XI today presents his first detailed defense of the disbanded Catholic Action organization since the controversy between the Holy See and the Italian government arose several weeks ago.

It is an unqualified denial of fascist charges that the Catholic Action participated in political activities. Without mentioning the fascist party by name the encyclical refers to "irreverences and violence which took place in the presence of and with the participation of members of a political party."

"It is clear," the letter said, "that all these accusations (against Catholic Action) are nothing but a pretext... We dare to say even the Catholic Action itself is a pretext."

"That which was desired and that which was attempted was to tear away from the Catholic Action Society and through this process to tear away from the church the young, and all the young."

Confirmation More Explicit.
"This confirmation is made all the more explicit and categorical, we were almost about to say solemn and violent, is the one who not only represents all, but who can do all and who confirms it in official or quasi-official publications dedicated to the young."

This letter as well as similar statements was interpreted as a reference to Premier Mussolini.

"We can not be grateful to one," the pontiff writes in another section, "who after putting out of existence socialism and anti-religious organizations... has permitted them to be so generally readmitted... and has made them even stronger and more dangerous inasmuch as they are now hidden and also protected by their new uniform."

"You ask us," the encyclical reads, "... what is to be thought about the formula of an oath which even little boys and girls are obliged to take about executing orders without discussion, from an authority which can give orders against all truth and justice.... The answer from the Catholic point of view and also from a human point of view is inevitably only one: Such an oath as it stands is illicit."

"The encyclical letter is entitled 'Concerning Catholic Action.' It is addressed to the dignitaries of the church."

Catholics Grieve.
The pontiff expresses "exquisite satisfaction" that Catholic organizations of all countries have expressed their astonishment and grief to see the society "persecuted and assailed here in the very center of the apostolic hierarchy."

Particularly pleasing, he writes, are the "convincing proofs... that these organizations have remained docile... in refraining absolutely from any and every kind of political activity."

Disbanding of the Catholic Action in Italy, he declared, "was carried out with the use of tactics which would give the impression that action was being taken against a dangerous organization of criminals."

"It is noteworthy," he writes, "that even among the officers of the law charged to carry out these orders of suppression, there were many who showed... that they were almost asking pardon for doing that which they had been commanded to do... We have reserved for them a special blessing."

"But, in sad contrast to the manner in which the suppression was carried out, we have seen the whole thing from the ringside, right into the laps of those at the ringside. Rows of great lights about the ring gave it a giant silver ribbon, and a crown. It is a giant of a stadium. It could be half full, which would be a magnificent crowd, and the people would appear lost in its depths."

The great lights above the ring were turned on, flooding the ringside. The hand played "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia." It was a southern band, or seemed so.

STIRB PILES UP HUGE MARGIN IN EARLY ROUNDS BY FAST ATTACK

German, Smiling Under Barrage of Heaviest Blows of Strib, Grows Steadily Stronger and Rips Challenger's Face and Body With Relentless, Ever-Pursuing Tactics.

By Ed Danforth,
Constitution Sports Editor.

STADIUM, CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 3.—Max Schmeling, of Germany, scion of a family of sign painters, clinched his right to the heavyweight championship of the boxing world tonight when he stopped William L. Stribling, second, of Bainbridge, Ga., in the fifteenth round of their fight here.

Referee George Blake stepped in between the lithe, fresh German and the tottering, bleeding southerner and stopped the contest when the last round had only 14 seconds to go.

As Stribling swayed uncertainly on his feet, Blake lifted the German's left arm and the crowd of 35,000 roared acclaim to the champion.

A moment before Stribling had been knocked face downward in his own corner by a jolting right chop. For the last five rounds he had been hacked into ribbons by this jarring right that landed on his jaw and body at close quarters. From the ninth round Stribling had been bleeding and weaving on his feet.

The result was inevitable. Stribling seemed done for long before the end came. Yet he stuck in there, taking it gamely, and by his defeat won more friends than he had ever earned by his long string of victories.

It was the first time Stribling has been stopped in his career. Since the skinny boy battled Kid Domb in Atlanta in 1922, he has won most of his 300 fights, but never has been stopped. It took the iron jaw, the steel wire nerves and the stabling right hand of a German boy to stop him.

Schmeling speaks English haltingly, but his right fist balled up in wet leather is as eloquent, persuasive and to the point. Without seeming to make a pun, it was right to the point of Stribling's chin just in time to write a knockout into the record. Stribling was down for 10 seconds, a tailspin he has never experienced in his plane, but as the fatal count was being tolled he rolled over and hoisted himself to one knee. He took nine, wiping the blood from swollen, cut lips with the back of his glove. At nine he arose with mighty effort and waved to Schmeling with arms weakly lifted.

As the black-thatched German waited in the center of the ring, Stribling faintly, balanced on his toes with the murderous right hand cocked, Referee Blake stepped in between the men and called a halt. Soberly, calmly, at the ringside, that with only a few seconds to go the bout should not have been stopped.

RINGSIDE, CLEVELAND STADIUM, Ohio, July 3.—Lake Erie was still a tossing and golden flood as the July sun died across it when long lines of people began to file down from the city to the stadium where William Lawrence Stribling met Max Schmeling, the champion, for the world's heavyweight title.

The scene was a mackerel sky above. A golden glist rouged the cheeks of some of the clouds. Inside the stadium workmen were busy tearing away the stands erected to hold the blowers which were to keep the Canadian soldiers, huge flies that came in off the lake, from the ring. The wind had a crown. It is a giant of a stadium. It could be half full, which would be a magnificent crowd, and the people would appear lost in its depths.

Vanderbilt and Peter Arno Clash In Chance Meeting at Station

RENO, Nev., July 3.—(AP)—George E. Killmer, head of a private protective association, today said Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. and Peter Arno, cartoonist accused by Vanderbilt of breaking up his home, fought at a chance meeting at a railway station here early today.

Killmer said Vanderbilt had gone to the station to bid goodbye to Logan Billingslea, president of the Bronx Chamber of Commerce, New York.

After passing each other several times, hostilities began, Killmer related, when Arno descended from a railway coach in appearance "retaining an insulting grip." The officer said Mrs. Vanderbilt's name was used by the two men but that he "could not get them."

Vanderbilt was declared to have struck Arno, who slipped and fell, after which the men were separated. Upon first arriving at the station, Killmer said Vanderbilt "noticed Mr. Arno sitting on a luggage truck in the company of a lady."

No attempt was made by Mr. Vanderbilt to speak to Arno, Killmer's statement continued, "but Mr. Arno left his companion and went to the station entrance, where he interviewed the railroad police; the meeting of the two men was not expected or anticipated by Mr. Vanderbilt."

"Mr. Vanderbilt remarked to me that the party (with Arno) was not Mr. Vanderbilt, as we passed agents of the railroad, and he recognized the lady, to whom he spoke and addressed as Mrs. Florence Rice Smith. The train was pulling into the station, Mr. Arno left his companion again, going inside of the station. He returned shortly with a man who carried his baggage. At this time we were near the west end of the station. As Mr. Arno passed Mr. Vanderbilt he passed some remark and his face was covered with a sarcastic smile. Mr. Vanderbilt did not act at this time resent the remark, but followed to Mr. Arno's coach."

No trouble would have resulted had Mr. Arno remained in the coach, but he returned to the steps of the coach and got to the ground as Mr. Vanderbilt was writing down the number of the car."

RAIL SCHEDULED FOR THE DAY

Shows Will Serve To Cool Off Hot Fourth, Forecast Says.

Railroads will serve to cool off the Fourth of July holiday spirit in this city, according to a forecast made by the weather bureau.

Thunderstorms may dampen the ardor of observers of the Fourth of July holiday spirit in this city, according to a forecast made by the weather bureau.

On Friday the day started out with a reading of 77 degrees and by mid-afternoon 95 degrees had been registered.

Just before dark a light rain, which recorded 0.1 of an inch, fell in Atlanta, causing a sudden drop in the mercury.

The temperature recorded at 4 o'clock was 90 degrees, and shortly thereafter, as the wind started piling up rain clouds for the shower, the thermometer slid downward until at 6 o'clock, when the rain began, it was at 87 degrees.

Following the rain the mercury had gone down to 83.6 degrees, making a total drop of approximately 13 degrees.

Today will be much the same, said the meteorologist, and though he did not positively promise rain, he believed it highly probable that more cooling thunderstorms are headed this way.

The meteorologist stated that many were complaining that Friday was a hot day and that many thought possibly that a record of some sort had been hung up. He dispelled this idea by pointing out the record rain made for July 3, in 1925.

On that day it was a fraction higher than 101 degrees and "plenty hot," according to Mr. Hermann.

British M. P.'s Apologize For Row in Commons

LONDON, July 3.—(AP)—Members of the left wing labor group who got in a scuffle with attendants in the house of commons yesterday when one of their colleagues was ordered out of the chamber, called on the speaker today and it was understood, offered apologies.

It was believed the visit showed the possibility of further developments from the commons fight.

U. S. WILL RESUME BUILDING PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—Planning to spend more than $100,000,000 on public buildings, the treasury has entered the 1932 fiscal year prepared to carry on as speedily as possible its huge construction program.

It holds $90,000,000 to be spent for federal structures and expects congress to appropriate additional funds needed to meet the program expanded to alleviate unemployment and to take advantage of low material prices.

Of the amount on hand, $85,000,000 will go for construction and sites outside the District of Columbia, $5,000,000 for acquisition of sites in Washington.

The expanded program, which is under Assistant Secretary Heath, was carried on at a cost of approximately $72,000,000 in the year just closed.

Outside the District of Columbia the government spent $60,000,000 for sites and construction while in Washington it spent $12,000,000.

At the year end the treasury had completed 133 buildings at a cost of $38,897,362, had let 170 contracts for other buildings and had paid $22,000,000 for the year just closed.

The Washington projects, which had called for bids on projects which will cost $48,000,000.

Sites have been selected and drawing of plans started for 173 other buildings which will cost the government about $77,000,000.

Besides these projects there are pending about 350 others in which sites for new buildings have not been selected.

"It will no doubt be official today, and coinciding with the American national holiday, will appear as a final proof that the two republics intend to pursue their policy of peace in full agreement."

GREAT BRITAIN AT LIMIT ON PLAN, SNOWDEN SAYS

LONDON, July 3.—(AP)—Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, made a clear declaration in the house of commons today that Great Britain has gone as far as she is prepared to go in making sacrifices for a moratorium on war debts and reparations.

"Unless the other parties to the house that the latest information regarding the negotiations in Paris was not very satisfactory."

The Hoover proposal, he said, had "created a somewhat serious budgetary position in this country," though the British government had welcomed it as "an act of good faith."

The chancellor cited previously published figures which showed that the net loss to British finances in the Hoover scheme would be 1,000,000 pounds (about $55,000,000) in the present financial year.

"This 11,000,000 pounds is a very serious burden upon the taxpayers of this country," he said.

BERLIN STILL BELIEVES PROPOSAL WILL BE ACCEPTED

BERLIN, July 3.—(AP)—With the fate of the Franco-American negotiations still in the balance, Germany tonight maintained her attitude of watchful waiting after effects of President Hoover's ability to carry out his plan for a year's respite in war debts.

The newspaper Ach-Uhr Abendblatt printed two columns of praise for President Hoover saying his initiative had insured him an abiding place in history.

Elsewhere a cartoon showed Max Schmeling, the German boxer, scheduled to battle Stripling at Cleveland, Ohio, tonight, nodding and saying he ought to hit his American opponent with anything heavier than velvet gloves at a time when American is doing so much to help his distressed fatherland.

IRON RATE INCREASE DENIED

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(AP)—The interstate commerce commission today refused to permit railroads to increase rates on iron and steel products from Birmingham and other southern points to eastern New England and Buffalo-Eastern territory.

The southern rates are lower than the rest of the country. The railroads sought to increase them to the level of other sections.

"It is undeniably true as here contended," said the commission, "that the present rates from the south to the north are a result of market competition, but that fact in itself is no proof that such rates may be lawfully increased and more particularly by abrupt increases such as here proposed which would do serious violence to a legitimate business long fostered by the respondents."

"The evidence upon this record leaves no doubt that the southern manufacturers would have serious difficulty in insuring a sufficient supply of iron and steel to meet the demand in northern territory if they are much less than they can supply it must be the result of the lawfulness of the proposed rates is upon respondents and we are of the opinion that they have not sustained it."

Americans Abroad Celebrate Fourth At Paris Banquet

PARIS, July 3.—(AP)—Paul Doumer, president of France, departed from the usual procedure tonight and attended the Independence Day banquet of the American Chamber of Commerce at which Louis Rollin, the minister of commerce, was the only French speaker.

Ambassador Edge and Secretary Mellon received an ovation by 400 guests when they entered the banquet hall. The evening was a memorable one for a number of reasons.

General Pershing and General Gossard, the military governor of Paris, were among the guests seated in a hall decorated with the seals of the 48 states.

DRY AGENT CLEARED OF DEATH GUILT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., July 3.—(AP)—The killing of W. E. Griffin, reputed bootlegger, by Neil Evans, federal agent from Jacksonville, in a gun fight here Monday, was termed "justifiable homicide" by a coroner's jury today.

The jury at first failed to agree after almost an hour's deliberations, but finally returned a verdict after receiving additional instructions from Coroner T. M. Rickards.

POLICE FEAR DRIVE BY EXTORTIONISTS

New York Officers Guard Wealthy Men After Underworld Tip.

NEW YORK, July 3.—(AP)—Tips from the underworld that a highly organized gang of extortionists has marked a list of theatrical and professional people for kidnaping had police on their toes today.

Detectives disclosed that among the wealthy persons who are under constant police guard to protect them from abduction is Frank Keeney, Brooklyn theatrical magnate and Florida race track owner.

For more than a week Mr. Keeney was shadowed without his knowledge by detectives who received information that kidnapers had marked him for their prey. Told of the precautions, he said he had received threats but was not worried.

Although Deputy Chief Inspector Sweeney, who assigned the guards, refused to divulge any other names, it is known that threats have come to wealthy persons—including hotel managers—recently. It was recalled that George Jessel, the comedian, Peggy Hopkins Joyce and Texas Guinan were assigned guards some time ago after they had been threatened while playing in Brooklyn.

AIR VIEWS

CANDLER FIELD, long noted as a commercial aviation center, during the six weeks beginning Monday will take on the aspect of an army air corps base when air reserve officers from throughout this district congregate there for annual active duty. Selection of the Atlanta airport as the scene of the 1931 operations attests to the efficiency with which the local air reserve unit has functioned since its formation and is quite a feather in the cap of Lieutenant R. B. Brown, air officer for the fourth corps area, who was largely instrumental in having this city named. In past years reserve officers in this district have received their training at Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala.

The training period, divided into three camps of two weeks each, will bring to Atlanta about 44 air reserve officers from throughout this district, while between eight and 11 airplanes, most of them service type ships, will be on hand for training purposes. This is particularly advantageous, as Major-General Fecht, chief of the air corps, has often expressed a desire to have as many reserve officers qualified in service planes as different types from training planes as possible.

The two units which will start training here Monday include the 36th Pursuit Squadron, based at Orleans under the command of Major Bennett A. Molter, veteran pilot and a member of the one-time famous Lafayette Escobar, and the 45th Pursuit Squadron, based at Candler field under the command of Major William L. Plummer, well-known Atlanta reserve officer. The two units will join forces in expediting the work of the three camps, which will run consecutively through August 15.

Although probably a few of the men coming here will have had no air work since the 1930 training period, most of them have been picked up time here and there and some of them, notably A. R. McMullen, widely known Tampa pilot, and Leo C. Wilson, supervising inspector here for the department of commerce, fly constantly in their work. Each reserve officer will get in approximately 25 hours in the air—either in solo or dual flights—during the weeks' camp. Flying will include cross-country work and some formation maneuvers.

The first step in Beeler Blevins' projected speed flight from Los Angeles to Jacksonville in an attempt to set a new record for a transcontinental air journey will take place Sunday morning when the Atlanta pilot, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Candler Jr., board an American Airways transport plane for the trip to the Pacific. The flight, which will be started from Los Angeles as soon as weather conditions are propitious, will be made in a new Lockheed Orion, a high-speed, low-wing monoplane, which Mr. Candler recently purchased to take the place of his Vega. Blevins hopes for a helping wind which will enable him to complete the 2,180 miles in some 9 hours, faster than the time made by Frank Hawks between Los Angeles and New York.

Opening of another air caravan, not quite so important, perhaps, but interesting enough in this neck of the woods, will start at Columbus, Ga., at about noon today, when a fleet of planes hop off for the Tri-State Air Tour, a five-day affair which will include its itinerary a number of Alabama and Florida points. Atlantans who will take part in the tour include Jim Williams, a Wright plane, probably the charge of Gus Leazar, Atlanta base manager.

The 1931 National Air Tour for the Edsel B. Ford trophy, with some 20 planes of various types and sizes in the company, will leave Detroit this morning for a 22-day flight through 18 states and one Canadian province. The tour will reach the south on July 9, when Knoxville, Tenn., will be visited, and then Murfreesboro, Tenn., Memphis, Birmingham, Montgomery, and Gulfport, New Orleans and Shreveport, will have a chance to look over the contestants. Ray Cooper, a Wright plane, probably the charge of Gus Leazar, Atlanta base manager.

2 MEN ARE STRICKEN ON ATLANTA STREETS

Two unidentified men, one the victim of heart prostration, the other apparently suffering from amnesia, were puzzling police and Grady hospital authorities Friday night. A man, about 35 or 40 years old, collapsed on Edgewood avenue and passers-by summoned a Brandon, Bond & Condon ambulance which took him to Grady hospital. His condition was at first thought serious, but he later became slightly improved and is now thought to be out of danger.

ARBITRATION POLICY OF U. S. DENOUNCED

UNIVERSITY, Va., July 3.—(AP)—Dr. John H. Latane, of Johns Hopkins University, said today at the institute of public affairs that as "a weak and feeble republic" the United States was champion of international arbitration, but since "becoming the wealthiest and most powerful nation on earth" it has no care to care for the weak and feeble republics of the world. LONG DENIES ALLIANCE WITH POLITICAL FOES

NEW ORLEANS, July 3.—(AP)—Governor Huey P. Long at Baton Rouge today denied reports printed in newspapers to the effect that an agreement had been reached between the governor and the old regular democratic organization in New Orleans, formerly his political opponents, for support of a common ticket headed by P. M. A. Allen, chairman of the state highway commission, for governor in the 1932 state primary.

FUNERAL RITES TODAY FOR VICTIM OF BULLET

Funeral services for T. C. Johnston, 33, of 707 Woodson street, investigator in Solicitor Boykin's office, is believed to have shot himself through the head early Friday morning in the driveway of his home, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Interment will be in Roseland cemetery.

POWER LINES ARE CUT; POLICE AID SOUGHT

Five cases of trouble on rural lines of the Georgia Power Company led officials to suspect a renewal of sabotage activities Thursday night. Service in the affected areas was restored early Friday, but company officials have appealed to Fulton and DeKalb police for aid in preventing similar occurrences.

DEPOT AT FITZGERALD AND WAREHOUSES BURN

Fire That Threatened Disastrous Conflagration Held to $30,000 Damage.

FITZGERALD, Ga., July 3.—Fire today destroyed the Atlanta, Birmingham & Coast railroad depot, the storage warehouses of the Holmes Hardware Company and the Fitzgerald Hardware Company, and a number of box cars and other equipment on the tracks.

The fire, which started about 1:30 p. m., was brought under control two hours later with the assistance of fire-fighting equipment from Tifton, Cordele, Ocala and Douglas, all of which cities sent help when it appeared as though the main business section of Fitzgerald was seriously endangered. There was a heavy wind blowing and the flames threatened to sweep right up the main business street.

No cause has been ascertained for the fire. The damage, which was covered by insurance, will amount to about $30,000.

NINE PERSONS INJURED IN HEAD-ON COLLISION

MACON, Ga., July 3.—(P)—Nine persons were injured in a head-on collision of automobiles at Echocoune today.

The injured, brought to the Macon hospital, were:

Mrs. O. F. Thompson, Montezuma, cuts, bruises, possible fracture of the spine and shock.

Mrs. L. S. Thomas, Montezuma, cuts, bruises, shock and possible internal injuries.

Mrs. Martha and Frazier Thomas, children of Mrs. L. S. Thomas, cuts, bruises and other injuries.

George Watson, Marietta, cuts and bruises.

Clint Smithwick, Marietta, possible fractures and internal injuries, cuts and bruises.

John McCollum, Marietta, lacerations and bruises.

Miss Opal Barksdale, Montezuma, cuts and bruises.

The car containing the Montezuma party, officers said, was driven by Watson. McCollum drove the other. The two automobiles met head-on at a curve near a bridge approach at Echocoune creek.

Deputy Sheriff Luther Stevens, of Bibb county, said a charge of driving while intoxicated had been lodged against McCollum at the request of Watson. McCollum, he said, will be held for Peach county officers.

SALESMAN INJURED IN AMERICAN CRASH

AMERICUS, Ga., July 3.—A. J. Sharp, traveling salesman, was painfully cut and bruised when his car was struck by another automobile driven by W. T. McMath, of Americus, five miles east of here early last night.

The crash occurred at the intersection of the Vienna highway and a side road, leading to the Leslie highway. Sharp was traveling at high speed along the highway coming in the direction of Americus when the accident occurred. McMath, having stopped at the intersection of the two roads, moved slowly onto the arterial road just as Sharp passed along. The two cars came together and the Sharp car was turned over and demolished. McMath and a negro who was in the car with McMath all escaped injury and gave first aid to Sharp.

TO INSTALL PASTOR AT COVINGTON CHURCH

COVINGTON, Ga., July 3.—The Rev. Peter Marshall will be formally installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Covington on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. A communion of the Atlanta presbytery, including Dr. William Hark, Dr. Richard Omer, Dr. J. R. McCain and E. G. Martin will conduct the services. This will mark the beginning of Mr. Marshall's official ministry. Though he has been serving the church since last fall, while attending the Theological seminary in Decatur.

White Youth Saves Negro Playmate's Life

SPARTA, Ga., July 3.—"Billy" Macken, young son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Macken, has been mentioned for a Carnegie medal for saving the life of a small negro boy, bitten by a large water moccasin, near here Thursday afternoon.

A party of small white boys and the little negro were at the old brick yard pond "mudding" the water with catfish and the negro's hand was bitten by the snake as he reached down for a fish. Young Macken immediately tied a tourniquet around the negro's arm and rushed him here to a physician.

Not having any riding conveyance they ran all the way, more than a mile, to the doctor's office. So well had the tourniquet been tied that the poison had not become dangerously diffused over the little negro's system and his life was saved.

SCHOOL HEAD ASKS ELECTION OF TRUSTEE

HAHIRA, Ga., July 3.—An election for trustee has been called for this school district by Lawrence county school superintendent, E. H. Beck, for the purpose of naming one trustee to fill the place made vacant by the expiration of the term of D. K. Hollis, who served one season. The election will be held on July 11. It is believed that Mr. Hollis will not offer himself for re-election, but that several other patrons are moderating upon making the race, though no official announcement has as yet been made.

FOUR MURDER CASES FACE BARTOW COURT

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., July 3.—Bartow superior court has been called for the July term Monday, July 13. Judge Claude C. Pittman will preside and the grand and traverse jury lists have been drawn and made public.

There are four murder cases scheduled to come up for trial, one of them being that of Ralph Williams, young white man who shot and killed his father near Cartersville some weeks ago. It will be his claim that he fired the gun accidentally as he leaped from the porch of the Williams home, while being pursued by the enraged father with a knife.

MANCHESTER DEATH SENTENCE DELAYED

MACON, Ga., July 3.—The sentencing of Earl Manchester to death in the electric chair for the murder May 27, 1929, of James W. Parks, 18, scheduled for tomorrow has been deferred again—this time until Tuesday or Wednesday, it was announced today.

R. D. Feagin, counsel for Manchester, said Solicitor Charles H. Garrett told him the sentence would not be passed tomorrow. Judge H. A. Mathews approved the delay.

Mr. Feagin will appear Monday before the state prison commission to argue a petition for commutation to life imprisonment.

LIKE WINSHIP PASSES IN MACON HOSPITAL

MACON, Ga., July 3.—(P)—Like Winship, fisherman and hunter, for many years one of Macon's best marksmen, died at a private sanitarium here this afternoon. He had been ill for two months and hope for his recovery was abandoned a month ago.

General Blanton Winship, his brother and judge advocate general of the army, will come to Macon from Washington to attend the funeral which has been tentatively set for Sunday afternoon.

He also was a brother of Lieutenant Winship, who was shot and killed recently in San Francisco.

BALL GAMES PLANNED ON FOURTH PROGRAM

CARTERSVILLE, July 3.—A Fourth of July program, featuring a water battle in the morning, and baseball games in Cartersville and Ato in the afternoon, is planned for Saturday in Bartow county.

Nelson comes in for the afternoon game with the Cartersville team, while Rockman will send a strong team to contest with Ato on the latter's diamond.

Legion Auxiliary President

Quimby Melton, new commander of the Georgia Legion, was city editor of The Constitution.

O'Neill Speaks.

Ralph O'Neill, national commander of the legion, spoke at the morning session today. He recommended legislation to extend the time in which the five-year convertible term government life insurance must be converted into a policy with a higher premium rate and denied that the payment of cash loans to veterans was in any way responsible for the deficit in the national treasury. He declared, on the contrary, that payment of the "bonus" money had gone a long way toward restoring business normality to the country.

Commander O'Neill advocated liberalizing the five-year term policy, he said, because "the financial condition of the average veteran during the last few years has not improved and it is only fair that the right to convert such a policy be extended."

He said there had appeared recently misstatements in regard to the request the legion make for further hospitalization for veterans. The present hospital construction program will take care of the needs of veterans until 1935, he said, and it probably will not be necessary to urge further construction before that time.

The government should anticipate future needs, however, and provide since there will be a gradually increasing need for hospital construction from 1935 to 1945.

Denies Charges.

The national commander denied that recent adjusted service certificate loans were responsible for the national deficit. There has been no appropriation of funds under the act, he said, the loans coming from the veterans' reserve fund and the government makes a profit on each loan.

Information gathered by the legion showed, he said, that except in rare instances loans were made for those who had already borrowed on their certificates.

He said a survey by the legion disclosed the money had gone to pay doctors' bills, rent long overdue, to buy clothing and food for children, particularly to purchase seed for spring crops.

The commander said he believed the legion should press for amendments to the World War veterans' act that would include the widows and orphans' reserve fund and the government allowances for men in hospitals who cannot prove their disabilities were caused by war service.

Some form of compensation should be provided for the wives and children of men who should be in hospitals but who, through lack of means to care for their families, are unable to take the hospitalization, Mr. O'Neill declared.

He said the legion should press for an increase of death compensation to the widows and children of men who died from diseases or wounds received in the service.

Mrs. John Gilmore, of Nashville, Tenn., southern division vice president, discussed the work of the auxiliary in a splendid address at the Thursday afternoon session of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Gilmore praised the democracy of the organization and urged all women eligible for membership to insist upon their soldier relatives joining the legion so that they might join the auxiliary. "The responsibility," said Mrs. Gilmore, "lies with the women."

Trophies Presented.

The presentation of trophies marked the morning session of the auxiliary Friday, with the Joseph Neel unit of Macon winning the general excellence cup awarded by the Georgia department of the legion and presented by William Parker, state commander of the legion. The Joseph Neel unit of Macon won the senior membership cup for the greatest increase in membership. The cup was presented by Miss Lella Summerville.

Mrs. Harry Kennedy, of Barnesville, presented the Richard B. Russell cup to the Winder unit.

The junior membership cup offered to units that have been organized less than three years was presented to Ashburn by Mrs. Gilmore. Mrs. Ed Fish, state publicity chairman, awarded the Cassius Hammond trophy to the Dawson unit. The Mary Travis cup, presented by the Griffin unit in honor of Mrs. E. F. Travis, department president, was awarded the Griffin unit. Mrs. Travis made the presentation.

The Winder unit and the historical trophy offered units located in towns with a population less than 800 was awarded the Roberta unit.

Mrs. Joseph Toomey, state historian for the auxiliary, presented Miss Bertie Stembbridge, who awarded the Americanism medal offered for the best essay on national defense to Lewis Higgins, of Rome.

Historical citations were given Cedartown, Ashburn, Barnesville, Crawfordville, Forsyth, Gainesville, Dawson, Thomasboro, Statesboro, Columbus and Macon. Certificates of attainment were presented the following units which reached their membership quota by December: Roberta, Ashburn, Statesboro, Cedartown, Macon and Tifton.

The units reaching their membership quota by April were also presented certificates. They were Thomasboro, Summerville, Mason, Richmond, Winder, Dawson, Statesboro, Quitman and Tifton.

Five Macon Boys Pay $91 Not To See Fight

MACON, Ga., July 3.—(P)—Police today announced five Macon youths ranging in age from 10 to 21 who knuckled off mileage hub from a rented automobile Thursday and departed for Cleveland and the Stribling-Schmeling fight had returned and paid for Statesboro.

Officers said it cost the youths $91 to cover costs of arrest in Hapeville, Ga., return to Macon, discharging and mileage.

Police said the five were C. W. Barfield, J. B. Finney, C. J. Jenkins, H. C. Etheridge and Gostin Williams.

YOUTH SHOT BY GIRL STILL CLINGS TO LIFE

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 3.—(P)—Preston Dudley, 23, who was shot and wounded yesterday, allegedly by his sweetheart, remained in a critical condition in a hospital here Friday.

Mary Cone, 21, was held in jail on a charge of assault with intent to murder. Officers said the charge would be changed to murder if Dudley dies.

The Rev. A. J. Cone, the girl's father, told police his daughter and Dudley had been "sweethearts" for a long time. The girl left her home early Wednesday morning and returned several hours later, he said, and Dudley was shot as she left his automobile.

The only statement made by the youth and girl was that they had quarreled.

to units that have been organized less than three years was presented to Ashburn by Mrs. Gilmore. Mrs. Ed Fish, state publicity chairman, awarded the Cassius Hammond trophy to the Dawson unit. The Mary Travis cup, presented by the Griffin unit in honor of Mrs. E. F. Travis, department president, was awarded the Griffin unit. Mrs. Travis made the presentation.

The Winder unit and the historical trophy offered units located in towns with a population less than 800 was awarded the Roberta unit.

Mrs. Joseph Toomey, state historian for the auxiliary, presented Miss Bertie Stembbridge, who awarded the Americanism medal offered for the best essay on national defense to Lewis Higgins, of Rome.

Historical citations were given Cedartown, Ashburn, Barnesville, Crawfordville, Forsyth, Gainesville, Dawson, Thomasboro, Statesboro, Columbus and Macon. Certificates of attainment were presented the following units which reached their membership quota by December: Roberta, Ashburn, Statesboro, Cedartown, Macon and Tifton.

The units reaching their membership quota by April were also presented certificates. They were Thomasboro, Summerville, Mason, Richmond, Winder, Dawson, Statesboro, Quitman and Tifton.

Charters were presented two new units recently organized. They were Eastman and the Richmond county unit of August.

Mrs. Boyce Ficklen, of Washington, past national president and past state president of the auxiliary, was presented to the group and made a short talk. The closing session of the auxiliary was held Friday afternoon.

John W. Wainwright, of Atlanta, state welfare worker, spoke to the convention on methods of welfare work by the auxiliary. The Winder unit sang the "Bells of St. Mary's."

Mrs. E. F. Travis, the president, presented Senator William J. Harris, both of whom spoke to the women on their work with the disabled veterans.

Miss Margaret Giles, secretary to Adjutant William Simmon, was presented with a gift by the auxiliary.

Mrs. E. F. Travis and Mrs. Harvey Kennedy received medals in recognition of their work. Mrs. Robertson, of No. 48 hospital, spoke to the women on the work of the hospital and the aid of the auxiliary was enlisted.

Joe Carr, former adjutant, announced that he will give twin cups to the state auxiliary and Legion. These cups are to be given each year to the auxiliary that aids its Legion post the most and the Legion post that renders the greatest service to its auxiliary.

Resolutions were adopted to furnish comforts for the veterans in the hospitals and to put iron markers on all veterans' graves. Mrs. Horace Holden, of Atlanta, was indorsed for the post of national chaplain and Mrs. James M. Adams, of Rome, for national vice president of the southern division.

Resolutions were adopted voting thanks to Mrs. Travis and Mrs. Kennedy for their successful administration and to the LaGrange chapter of the auxiliary and the Baxter L. Schaub post of the Legion for their contribution to the work of the auxiliary.

The resolution combining the office of secretary and treasurer and making it an appointive office by the president was carried after a lengthy discussion.

Legion Session.

The Legion opened its business session Thursday afternoon by recommending National Executive Committee member Edgar B. Dunlap, of Gainesville, as a candidate for national commander to succeed Ralph T. O'Neill.

James A. Rankston, of Atlanta, delivered the treasurer's report, which showed, he said, a slightly better financial condition than previously, with no outstanding debts left unaccounted for except the expense of publication of the Georgia Legionnaire magazine.

Dr. Joseph M. Toomey, of Atlanta, state historian, announced the completion of the first volume of the history of the Georgia department of the Legion.

Trammell Scott, chairman of the junior baseball committee of the Americanism committee, reported some interest in the junior baseball league than ever before. J. G. C. Bloodworth, state service officer, detailed work of the service committee in aiding the work of the commission, hospitalization and the like, and outlined plans for obtaining additional governmental appropriations for the work which he called "the most important of the Legion."

J. J. West, of Albany, chairman of the child welfare committee, reported the work of the committee, emphasizing the work of family rehabilitation.

CONDITION OF TOBACCO IN GEORGIA UNCERTAIN

Observers Say Scattered Ruins Have Not Helped Backward Crop.

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 3.—The condition of the tobacco crop in south Georgia at this time is regarded as most uncertain by such experts as Nat Smith and B. B. Saunders, deans of Valdosta tobacco warehousemen. Saunders and Smith are largely interested in growing tobacco for themselves, as well as in the general condition from the standpoint of warehousemen, and they constantly cover the growing area checking up on the looks of the weed.

During the last 10 days the warehousemen and growers say there has been no change for the better in the conditions. The rain that has fallen has been in spots and there is no general benefit to be reported.

Smith, Saunders and other tobacco warehousemen deplore the recent proposal of the representative from Coffee county to cut warehouse charges for selling tobacco. They point out that the expense of operating sales warehouses is such that it cannot be raised or lowered to meet business conditions, and that at the present rate it is only the warehouses selling millinery and other goods which make an even break or a small profit during a season.

BARTOW ENTHUSIASTIC FOR ROOSEVELT CLUB

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., July 3.—A "Roosevelt-for-President" club has been organized here with Representative William S. Peebles as president; W. D. Pittard, of Cassville, vice president, and Judge Charles H. Pittard, of Cartersville, secretary. J. R. Whisker, M. L. Fleetwood, P. W. Bernard and J. N. Neel has been appointed by President Peebles.

More than 200 names have been enrolled as members of the club in Bartow county and much enthusiasm has been manifested in behalf of the candidacy of the New York governor.

FORT VALLEY SELECTS TEMPORARY OFFICERS

FORT VALLEY, Ga., July 3.—Louis Brown Jr. was named temporary chairman and Miss Wilma Orr, of Macon, temporary secretary of the Fort Valley democrats held at the county courthouse Friday afternoon. The organization will follow this initial movement, the date to be announced later.

Golden Anniversary

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 3.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Partin have just celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. A dinner was served in the grove at their home near Thomasville on the highway leading to Monticello, Fla., to which they had invited members of their friends and relatives.

'It Took German's Nerve and Right To Stop Strib'-Danforth that Stribling might have weathered the storm and kept his record clean of the K. O. sign. Perhaps he might have done so. It is food for later argument.

With that decisive gesture the dream of a lifetime of perseverance, faithful training and shrewd planning faded for the German. For 26 years the Stribling had looked forward to this moment. They sent their son into the ring perfectly conditioned and he fought his best. That he failed was entirely to the credit of the black titan. Murderous right uppercuts delivered at close range sapped Stribling's strength and cut down his speed. The final right chop was the coup de grace, but it was mild compared to the punishment Max delivered in the clinches.

So in losing Stribling actually gained in prestige. He showed the boxing world that he belonged where he could take it and keep coming for more. In those terrible late rounds, which must have been nightmares to the German boy, squinting through the red screen of his own blood, Stribling actually did most of the leading and suffered under pain from Stribling's cool, carefully aimed counter punches.

Stribling made mistakes in fighting, no doubt. He took more blows than he should have taken. He tried too hard for a knockout and forgot to use his superior boxing skill. But none can say that the southerner backed up from a blow or failed to walk into the German riposte.

At the finish the cheers were for Stribling as much as for Schmeling. Beyond the drop curtain of light the crowd of 40,000 yelled for both men. They had seen one of the best battles the heavyweight division has produced in years.

And, standing in the debris of their dreams, the Striblings offered excuses. They had only praise for the German lad who, like them, saves, had come through the byways of stage and music hall to become a fighter. They kept their grief to themselves.

STRIK EMBARRASSED.

Before handlers could leap into the ring, Schmeling rushed over to Stribling and embraced him with a comradely gesture. He wrapped his moist brown left arm around Stribling's neck and patted him on the back. Stribling grinned gamely through lips that were puffed and bleeding. Stribling started back to his corner, then returned to pick up his fight with a head that had been dislodged a moment before in an exchange of blows in the center of the ring.

He returned to his corner; he patted him on the back and wiped the blood from his face. Max and Clara Kinney, Stribling's wife, were pointing through the crowd, calm of mind, while thousands watched them. They were Spartan to the end.

And the little family group pushed through the crowd, leaving Max Schmeling in the center of the ring facing the cameras with his endless grin.

CRITICS CROSSED.

Schmeling emerged from his victory almost without a scratch. He appeared as fresh as when he started. He had shown far more defensive ability in blocking Stribling's left hook than anyone had imagined possible. And his defensive shell against Stribling's right cross was well-nigh perfect. None had imagined the German would be so durable. And, here, the German actually outscored Stribling at infighting. Verily he crossed up every critic.

The German, however, is no great shakes of a puncher. His right has none of the lethal qualities of Jack Dempsey's. From the eleventh round on he had Stribling groggy and reeling, but could not finish him. Your correspondent has a suspicion that he never could have put Stribling down for the count of 10, not the few remaining seconds. It was a bit unjust to stop it with such a few moments to go.

None of those who sat in the vast stadium could complain of lack of action. Stribling stepped away boxing smartly and won the first four rounds by a wide margin. Ever and anon he cut loose the old buckshot right, but it lacked steam and it lacked direction. It never landed solidly. As the fight wore on Stribling tired and Max improved. Schmeling was traveling sure, moving with oily ease on cat's feet. He was scoring at infighting and his blows must have been sapping Stribling's strength.

Stribling, feeling his power waning, threw everything he had into the eighth round and connected his right hand once with such force that Schmeling was staggered. But the concrete chin of the Ullan refused to be cracked.

Then in the eleventh, Max landed a terrific right hook with all his power just over Stribling's ear. That was the bolt that crashed Stribling's fight toward the title. From that moment Stribling was done for. He stuck in there on nerve and fighting instinct. And so the fight wore on to the gory twelfth. Schmeling seemed to be waiting for openings and then could not quite improve them with a knock-out.

TAB OF ROUNDS.

My tab of the rounds gave Stribling six rounds, Schmeling six and three even. There was action all the way. The clinches were half clinches from which the men broke without being touched by the referee.

And the judges, by the action of the referee, had nothing to do. The tall and the songwriter at whom the finger of suspicion had been pointed in the street to do up a betting coup had nothing to do but draw their fees for serving.

The ceremonies incident to launching the contest were cut short and the bout started a few minutes before 10 o'clock. The weather was cool. A breeze drove away the feared bugs.

STRIK HITS FIRST.

Stribling came out for the first round and struck the first blow, a left to the head. Max retaliated with a light left. They came together but broke quickly. Stribling landed another lightning left to the head and Stribling tried for a right, a hook, and missed. It was a sort of trial and error. They traded lefts and then Max fired his right chop. Stribling spun out of it. Both grinned. As the round closed Stribling landed a glancing right to the jaw and went to his corner at the bell leading comfortably.

The second round saw Stribling speed up. He was doing beautifully and stepping inside Max's pawing left hand. Max was not leading. He was letting Stribling do all the work and waiting, waiting. Stribling ducked and Max kept coming. Stribling was on his own. Then Max shot his right hand for the second time but Stribling faded back and it missed. Max caught Stribling in the chest with a right uppercut at close quarters. It was a sample of what was to come later. It was Stribling's round easily.

Stribling came out slowly for the third, eyeing the onrushing German. They clinched without a blow and stepped inside Max's pawing left hand. Then Stribling stepped in and landed a right hard on Max's jaw. It was a jarring blow but the German seemed unhurt. One of the short with two lefts. Stribling was patiently sparring for an opening for his right. He carried it high and coiled his chest as they clinched together. Stribling drove a right uppercut to Max's stomach and in the clinch fired his buckshot right again but it clanged and nose to nose. Stribling backed away, landed two lefts and stepped in again and drove his right hard to the chin. His timing was bad. The German's successive right hands that he landed did not shake the Ullan. Stribling was plainly puzzled. He won the round by a mile.

Stribling resumed his right-handed attack on Max in the fourth. Taking far too many of the German's left jabs to the mouth and nose to help him. He let Max jab him twice to land once, a strange reversal of form. Stribling drove his right at Max again but Max's head kept replying with those interminable jabs. It was also his blood on the German's brawny shoulder.

STRIK BUCKLES DOWN.

Apparently a bit weary by forcing the fight, Stribling buckled down to another round of close attack, driving his right home to body and head often to find it blocked by surprisingly clever gloves of Schmeling. The latter started well, but the quick succession. He scored heavily in the sixth, while Max kept throwing out his left. Stribling switched his attack to the left hand again, and before the round was half over Max nailed Stribling hard with a right chop to the jaw. It hurt the German. He broke away and took a long right to the jaw that drove Max to the ropes. Max landed left and right to Stribling's head in quick succession. He scored heavily in body punches. Stribling landed the last blow, a right to Max's head, but for the first time had trailed in the round.

W. L. WEAKENS.

In the seventh Stribling seemed to be weakening physically. He stepped with his left and on word from Pa in a clinch close to his own corner he socked an overhand right to Schmeling's ear that was a warning of things to come. Stribling came to the center of the ring Stribling drove Max to the ropes with a volley of lefts and rights.

Max was calm and one of his left hooks cut Stribling's eyelid. Blood streamed down over Stribling's face, but he fought on bravely. He hit Stribling with a right hand, bleeding profusely, continued his left-handed attack and now then and then all he had in right hands. He kept coming. Stribling weathered it all, played a tattoo on Stribling's face with a left and hid his time. Max came close to the end of the eighth round. Stribling had a high right hook at close quarters that must have hurt Stribling, for he came back with his corner leading in the round but

From the ninth round on Max took command of the fight. Stribling was tired. His left jab had lost steam and his right continued to miss its mark. Schmeling had learned he could out-punch Stribling in the clinches and kept boring in. Max won the round by a small margin.

EDGE CHANGES.

Max came out for the tenth on a trot. Stribling came up slowly. In the first half of the round Stribling was up to Stribling's chin that might have felled a less rugged or a less determined fighter. All over the ring they traded punches and Stribling was leading harder and oftener. At times he actually outboxed Stribling—I mean in the clever stuff of catching blows on his gloves and how and rolling over his punches. Near the end of the tenth Max landed a terrific right to the jaw. Stribling's knees buckled. He was dazed and staggered about the ring as the bell rang. The end was in sight.

Stribling came out fast for the eleventh and poured all his waning strength into his early ring work. He was groggy but he kept crowding the German. Schmeling danced about lightly and kept driving his left to Stribling's head and punching his right to the body every time they came together.

Stribling's face was carmine with his right hand. He was in a power frame. He wound up his right hand and nailed Max clearly on the chin. It landed solidly but alas, the sting was not there. Stribling was in a power frame. He wound up his right hand and nailed Max clearly on the chin. It landed solidly but alas, the sting was not there. Stribling was in a power frame. He wound up his right hand and nailed Max clearly on the chin. It landed solidly but alas, the sting was not there.

GREAT HEART.

Stribling came out superbly in round thirteen and threw his pitifully fading energy into the attack. But Schmeling grimly waited and counter-punched Stribling into near collapse. Stribling's eyes were closing and his lips were puffed. He looked boyish and helpless. Only his heart, as big as all outdoors, kept him in there and punching futile blows at a black, baffling, smiling giant who could not be hurt.

And round fourteen—the crowd yelling for a knockout—one man bouncing around on cat's feet; the other shuffling like an old man; actually saw Stribling carry the hopeless issue to Max and shot the first punches in every exchange. One of Stribling's blows hit Max on the trunk, a bit low. They smiled, took gloves and forgot it. Stribling was hanging on momentarily, then stepping back to fight again only to take jarring blows on the head and body.

He weathered the session and staggered back to his corner. Pa met him, mouth set, sponge ready. The other, moments it seemed, had disappeared.

OPENING COMES.

Stribling was out for the 15th and last. He landed twice weakly. Max was waiting for the opening that was sure to come. Midway the round Max stepped up and began shooting his right. Finally one connected and down Stribling pitched on his face in his own corner, looking up at the sky with a vacant stare. Max turned on his heel and walked straight to his own corner. He did not expect Stribling to rise. But as Stribling's blows hit Max on the head, he was waiting for the opening that was sure to come. Midway the round Max stepped up and began shooting his right. Schmeling nailed him in the mouth. His teeth grazed fell out to the canvas. Stribling looked down at it, dazed and reeling. Then Referee shield.

Blake stopped it. And Stribling stood with that great company who fight and fight and fight gamely, yet by some strange fate are denied the supreme reward of victory.

CARDS TROUCE PHILLIES TWICE

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—(P)—The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Phillies in both ends of a double-header here today, 6 to 1 and 7 to 3, to increase their lead to two and a half games.

In the first game Rhem outpitched Bolen. The latter started well, but the Cards got to his delivery in the closing innings.

The Red Birds hopped on Phil Collins in the opening inning of the nightcap, in the opening of the first inning, when they loaded the lead they never relinquished. Stout, making his National league debut as a starting hurler, held the Phils until the sixth inning, when they loaded the sacks with none out. Then Lindsey came to his rescue and allowed only one man to score.

SHEETS FORCED TO RETIRE, WOOD BRITISH TITLIST

Knee Injury Removes Frank; Cilli Aussem Takes Crown.

By Frank H. King.

LONDON, July 3.—(P)—Sidney B. Wood Jr., not yet 20 years old, tomorrow will become Wimbledon tennis singles champion without lifting a racket, succeeding to the title renowned by William Tatem Tilden II. Wood's sixth opponent, and doubles partner, Frank H. King, today announced he would not contest the title because of an injury sustained in a semi-final match with Jean Borotra Wednesday and aggravated yesterday by his play in the doubles.

The injury, a strained ligament, is not serious, but specialists advised against putting any more strain on the damaged leg for fear of causing some permanent injury.

TREATMENT SET.

With a week of rest and then a gradually lengthened series of workouts, the specialists said Shields would be back in good shape.

Shields' withdrawal and the play-off of the women's singles title today leaves Wimbledon with only four matches tomorrow, the last semi-finals of women's doubles, the finals of that phase of play, and the finals of mixed doubles and men's doubles.

Cilli Aussem, who was carried off the center court in this morning's semi-final match with a twisted ankle, defeated her countrywoman, Hilda Krahwinkel, in the women's singles final, 6-2, 7-5, to take the title to the first round for the first time.

George Lott Jr. and John Van Ryn advanced to the finals of men's doubles and Lott and Mrs. L. A. Harper to the finals of the mixed doubles. Lott and Van Ryn, leading American combination and seeding No. 1 in the Wimbledon draw, disposed of G. P. Hughes and Fred Perry, British pair, 6-4, 11-9, 8-6, and will meet Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, of France, in the finals.

PERRY HURT.

Lott and Mrs. Harper had a walk-over in the mixed doubles, Perry and Miss Mary Heely defaulting while leading by one set and 4-3 in games when Perry injured his ankle as he crashed into the side net after a ball. Like Shields, Perry wanted to continue to play, but was prevailed on to default and save himself for the competition for the first time.

England still must meet and dispose of Czechoslovakia before the interzone final with the United States. The women's doubles may be an all-British final, with Mrs. D. C. Shephard and A. B. Johnston, and Lott and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittington playing the French pair of Doris Kato and Suzanne Lenglen in the first match tomorrow to determine the other finalist.

Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Whittington, who were seeded for the round, were defeated by the French pair, Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Harper and Mrs. John Van Ryn, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

LEHMAN PLACES ON MONDAY CARD

Charley Lehman, the popular cowpuncher from Texas, has been matched with Louis LeChene, French-Canadian, in the semi-win of the wrestling match for the Georges L. Spiller Monday night. Promoter Henry Weber announced Thursday.

Lehman, who has been wrestling from tough men in Atlanta recently, and has made himself a favorite with the fans here, LeChene should give him a hard time. It will be a one-hour limit, one-fall bout.

The big affair of the evening will be the world's championship go-betweens, the world's physicality London. This pair has been used by Roebuck to win every one of his matches here, and his exceptional reach and strength make it difficult for his opponents to elude the hold for any length of time. Once he gets it, his handlers get his barbed ready, for over his head and under his chin, stand the shock of being lifted high in the air, whirled about and dashed to the floor with shattering force.

Londos, however, is the closest student of the game since Frank Gotch, and he is likely to have worked out a defense against the croch hold, just as he found ways and means of preventing Joe Stecher and Paul Jones from securing their famous scissors grip. They don't come any smarter, in fact just as they don't come any smarter, as the Greek champion.

BIG GAME HUNT.

Armed with a vicious croch hold and a body that is a masterpiece of traditional bow and arrow, the Cherokee Brave will certainly go on the trail for big game when he stalks the champion from Texas in the early evening. So far the husky Indian has found Martin, Duguit, Vaccaro, and Davison and Joseph Siegart at Spiller Monday night. Promoter Henry Weber announced Thursday.

ENDIAN'S CHANCE.

The sight of the two men in their wrestling gear, the Cherokee Brave, who weighs in the neighborhood of 240 pounds and is 6 feet 4 in height, will tower over the Indian, who weighs some eight inches, and will also have a 40-pound pull in weight.

DECATUR NET MEET Enters Semi-Finals

Decatur's annual tennis tournament advanced to the semi-final round in the men's singles Friday afternoon with four good matches. In the semi-finals slated for this afternoon on the J. W. Austin courts, "Red" Bolton meets Nelson Maynard, while Bill Hudson plays Pierre Howard. In the women's singles, Frances Howard defeated Betty Ganser, 6-0, 6-1; Bill Hudson defeated William Candler, 6-0, 6-1; Bolton defeated Milo Poterak, 7-5, 13-11, and Maynard defeated Charlie Smith, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

BASE STEALER.

Danny Southern, former National league outfielder, is leading in base stealing in the International league. He is an Oriole.

Blow-by-Blow Detail Of Fight for Title

Following is a blow-by-blow description of the championship fight:

ROUND ONE.

Stribling danced in his corner and he raced out sniping a left to the face as he stepped over the first punch. Schmeling grinned, backed the challenger to the ropes and hooked his left and right to the chin. Schmeling lunged in with a left hook that missed and he laughed. Stribling came in close, clinched, and rapped three rights on the champion's head. He drove both fists to the head again, but Schmeling clamped his ropes. Stribling cracked a right uppercut to the chin, but Schmeling nailed him on the ropes with a short left and right to the head. Schmeling spun the challenger around with a left and right to the head, but Bill came back stabbing with a left to the nose. The challenger stepped back, fine right to the jaw and Max backed away as the bell sounded.

ROUND TWO.

The champion crouched but Stribling straightened him up with a left hook to the head and they fell into a clinch. In close the tall challenger belted the champion about the body and flicked a short right to Schmeling's head. Schmeling took another hard right, whipped a hard left hook to the head but Bill poked the champion on the nose with two straight lefts. The champion crowded the challenger and seized his eye with a hard right. He hooked a hard left to the chin. Stribling drove the champion into the ropes with two sizing left hooks of that phase of play, and the finals of mixed doubles and men's doubles.

ROUND THREE.

Stribling, a tall, lean greyhound compared to the dogged, crowding champion, boxed carefully. He stabbed Max's head with a straight left and then found an opening for a whaling right to the chin. Schmeling smiled, but he was stung and he backed carefully away. Stribling stepped into him with a smashing right uppercut to the chin and dropped him. Stribling stepped into him with a smashing right uppercut to the chin and dropped him. Stribling stepped into him with a smashing right uppercut to the chin and dropped him.

ROUND FOUR.

Stribling's nose bled a little in his corner as Pa Stribling forced colloidum up his nostrils.

ROUND FIVE.

Schmeling snapped a short left into Stribling's bleeding nose. They swayed long lefts and the champion hooked his left short to the head. The champion smiled again as he missed with both hands and Schmeling drove a right into his side. Stribling pushed the challenger around and Schmeling nearly pushed the challenger over the middle rope. They boxed cautiously, sticking almost entirely to a duel of long left jabs. Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow and Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow and Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow.

ROUND SIX.

They started clinching but Schmeling stepped back when Stribling asked him to and came right back with a short left hook to the chin. Stribling missed a right uppercut and seemed to be getting careless and seemed to be getting careless and seemed to be getting careless.

ROUND SEVEN.

Apparently growing stronger as the fight went on, Stribling ripped from his corner and was on top of the champion almost before Stribling was off his stool. He did no damage, and they wrestled in the challenger's corner. Stribling shot two straight lefts to the champion's face, made Max miss with a left hook and dropped a short right. Schmeling drove his right to Stribling's head but the Georgian parried the blow and Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow.

ROUND EIGHT.

Stribling jumped to close quarters with a left hook to the ear and tied the champion up. The challenger jabbed and held as the blood trickled from his nose and mouth. Stribling whipped a left and right to the chin and made the champion miss as they fell to close quarters. Schmeling charged forward as the challenger wrestled all the way across the ring before he brought Max up sharply with a right uppercut to the head. He whipped a left hook to the champion's head and glanced another right uppercut off Max's face. As they came out of a clinch Schmeling's back was red with blood from Stribling's face. Stribling whipped a left hook to the champion's head, crossed his right straight to the jaw, and was belting the champion about the body when the bell rang.

ROUND NINE.

The champion marched into a clinch and they backed away, fencing carefully. Stribling drove both hands to the champion's head, forcing him into a corner, but Max crossed a right to the head and cuffed the challenger about the body. Stribling's knees sagged as Schmeling caught him with a hard right to the chin. Stribling backed away and the champion drove after him, whaling both hands into the Georgian's sides. Stribling, apparently trying to rally, forced Schmeling's head back with a right uppercut to the head but Max was upon him again, taking his right uppercut without a quiver to pound in close at the southerner's body. They were punching solidly in close at the bell.

ROUND TEN.

The champion charged all the way across the ring to meet Stribling with two straight lefts to the head. The challenger clinched and as they wrestled along the ropes Max shot Stribling's head back with a fierce right uppercut. Stribling never stopped punching, driving both hands to the body, driving Schmeling back with his compact body. Stribling's face was bleeding badly again and he shook his head desperately as Schmeling laid both hands to his head. Stribling's knees sagged as the champion smashed him on the head. Stribling held desperately and the champion nailed him with a right to the head. Stribling's head was shaking and he fell into a clinch. Stribling stepped into him with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow.

ROUND ELEVEN.

Schmeling charged out coolly and confidently, mercilessly smashing at his opponent's body. Schmeling whipped both hands to the head but Stribling cut loose in a desperate rally. He bounced both hands weakly at Schmeling's head and Stribling battered his body. A right caught Strib on the chin and he wobbled. He staggered under another right to the head and Schmeling stepped in carefully, measuring each blow. Stribling's face was a mass of blood as the stolid German worked carefully on his body, hammering punches into the head and body. Two right uppercuts smashed Stribling's head back but he had enough left to drive an uppercut to the champion's head. The challenger shook his head to clear his dazed brain as Schmeling rapped him about the head in close. Stribling was waving his hands, trying to escape punishment at the bell.

ROUND TWELVE.

Again Schmeling was on his feet almost before Stribling got out of his corner. Schmeling drove a right to Stribling's head with a short left hook and Stribling held on. Schmeling drove the southerner across the ring, cracking Stribling's head with a right. Stribling gamely took everything he had. They clinched and Stribling drove a right to the body but Schmeling buried both hands in Stribling's head and Stribling walked backward dodging, blocking, using every bit of the boxer's art to continue in the fight but he was in a clinch. Stribling was so weak that Schmeling could easily break his holds, in a clinch and he hammered the southerner's head with a right. Stribling's jaw and he wavered. The bell stopped Schmeling's next charge.

ROUND THIRTEEN.

Stribling's face but he had no defense for Schmeling's solid body jolts as they fell into a clinch. The Georgian threw a right to the head and Stribling tried to keep the champion away by poking long left hands as he retreated around the ring. Stribling stepped in with a left and right to the head and Schmeling seemed to be in a clinch. Stribling stepped into him with a left and right to the head and Schmeling seemed to be in a clinch. Stribling stepped into him with a left and right to the head and Schmeling seemed to be in a clinch.

ROUND FOURTEEN.

Stribling swung his left in a wide arc to the champion's head and stepped into a clinch. Stribling waved under a right to the chin. He held Stribling's head and Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow and Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow.

ROUND FIFTEEN.

Stribling came up weakly for the final round, retreating from the hand-shake as Max pounded after him, the crowd cheering and shouting for the champion. He tried firing long hand punches to the body, but Schmeling stepped inside and landed at his head. Stribling jolting in Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow.

ROUND SIXTEEN.

A left hook to the head and another to the body and he hung onto the champion. He tried firing long hand punches to the body, but Schmeling stepped inside and landed at his head. Stribling jolting in Stribling stepped in with a right uppercut to the jaw but the champion parried the blow.

ROUND SEVENTEEN.

Stribling came up weakly for the final round,

ATLANTANS SPEND JULY FOURTH AT VARIOUS RESORTS

Society Plans To Celebrate 155th Independence Day

July Fourth dawned today to find Atlanta society of many minds as to where it will celebrate the 155th anniversary of its independence. Southern beaches, mountain resorts and springs attract their quota of Atlantans, and gala plans have been made for elaborate and brilliant programs, which have for their keynote the patriotic pride and interest of a nation united in its aim and purpose. Sea Island, Beach, always a favorite rendezvous for local society, will be the scene of a number of gay house parties, and numerous guests will fill the cloister hotel, a great throng of Georgians going down for the week-end in anticipation of the Georgia state amateur golf tournament to be played on the Sea Island course at St. Simons July 7-11. Miss Marian Dean has taken the cottage of Mrs. Spurgeon King at the resort and she will be hostess at a house party, her guests including Mr. and Mrs. Sam Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. Jack Pierson, Mr. and Mrs. Goodloe Yancey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marshall and Roy Booker. A congenial group leaving yesterday for the island to participate in the golf tournament were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Black Sr., Mr. and Mrs. John Grant Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Dave Black, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Black Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Tess Bradshaw and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morgan. Another house party at the beach will be given by Miss Jane Sharp at the cottage of Mrs. Sam Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. William Sharp. Misses Martha and Helen Candler left yesterday to be her guests. Other Atlantans at Sea Island are Mrs. Omar F. Elder and her son, Omar Elder Jr., Colonel Gerald P. Okeefe, Mrs. Okeefe, and their two children, John and Betty Yopp. Further down the seacoast at Atlantic Beach are a group of prominent Atlantans including Mr. and Mrs. Bolling Jones, with their two sons, Saunders and Bolling Jones III, Mrs. Beverly Du Bose and her children, Beverly Jr. and Betty, Du Bose, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cuthbert with their young son, Tommy Cuthbert.

Lakemont Colony.
The summer colony at Lakemont will be augmented by a number of Atlantans who will motor up for the mountain and water sports offered by this inviting retreat. Mrs. William Prescott left last Tuesday to open her summer home there and she has as her guests Mrs. George Dexter, Mrs. Clarence May, Mrs. Oscar Pappenhimer, Mrs. William Hawkins, Mrs. Thomas Kewin, Mrs. Joseph Orme, Mrs. Fanny Mae Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ruse are also entertaining at a house party at their summer home over the Fourth. Their guests include Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strong, Miss Nell and Jane Strong, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Treadway, Billy Treadway and Miss Lila Baker, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Ruse, all of Atlanta.

Another north Georgia resort attracting many Atlantans for the week-end is Tate Mountain Estates. Mrs. Anne Bates Walsh will entertain at her home, Tuckahoe, on Lake Sequoyah, in compliment to her guest, Mrs. Corinne Batchelder Conolly, of Peoria, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Winship, whose lovely home is on the lake, near the golf course, will be hosts to a congenial party of friends for Fourth of July celebrations. A "housewarming" party will be given at the opening of the lovely new home of Mrs. Fanny B. Wright and Mrs. Ott Alston and family on the lake, to take place during the Fourth. Large numbers of invitations have been issued to the first at the 3-C Ranch, which began last evening with a square dance at the ranch house. There will be an informal dance this evening at the Conahaynes lodge.

Capital City Roof Is Scene Of Elaborate Dinner-Dance

Atlanta society assembled last evening on the breezy roof of the Capital City Club for an elaborate Independence dinner-dance featured as an advance celebration of the Fourth of July. Loudspeakers installed to broadcast the details of the Stribling-Schelling national championship fight were unusual features. Adding a festive note to the occasion were strings of tiny colored lights festooned between the white posts, and table decorations and favors appropriate for Independence Day, and red and white and blue, the national colors, were brought forward by United States flags, shields and banners, and souvenirs were suggestive of this color motif.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Kline entertained a party in honor of their guest, Miss Alice May McLaughlin, of New York, one of the most important of the summer visitors.

Dining together were Mr. and Mrs. Ray E. Stringfellow, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. G. Bowley. In a congenial quartet were Mr. and Mrs. W. Speas and Dr. and Mrs. W. M. Dunn.

Culbertson on Contract

BY ELY CULBERTSON, World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

Stripping the Hand of Suit Cards

When playing a hand at Contract, if the Declarer finds that he is approaching the rocks of unfavorable distribution, which have been the scene of many a Contract wreck, it behooves the navigator to study his chart closely. There may still be a way of escape from impending disaster. I have heretofore pointed out the dangers inherent in some distributions, even with the high safety of the system of play, and have shown how to avoid them. Expertness in play permits the partnership to bid the hand up to the full limit of its trick-taking power. On the other hand, it is unwise for the inept to contract for tricks, which he will find impossible to make, not because they are not in the hand, but because he will not know how to get them.

A leader among American Contract players, both in developing the theory of play and in its application at the table, is the late Mr. E. W. Vanderbilt, the skipper of the yacht Enterprise, which recently successfully defended the possession of the America's cup, prize trophy of love of the sport. His contributions to the game of Contract have been as great, or greater, than to yachting. He developed a system of play, which he called "The Vanderbilt System," and was a leading factor in standardizing and popularizing the game. He is the donor of the Vanderbilt cup, emblematic of the game of Contract supremacy. His skill at the Contract table is well known. The hand here-with furnishes a beautiful example of a hand which he met in an exceptional situation and triumphantly solved it.

In addition, the length in clubs may prove of value.

3-Having opened the bidding, Mr. Vanderbilt felt that he might as well play the hand at a game of contract. His partner's Assist makes him hope for honors in one of the side suits that will prove of value to him.

4-East's Double is fully justified. He holds 5 trumps, the Ace of hearts and a half chance of making a trick in clubs. If his partner had played only a little more accurately, the contract would have been defeated 1 trick.

The Play. West cashed 2 diamond tricks but instead of continuing the diamonds and giving East an overtrick, he decided to lead the heart Knave through Dummy's King. East refused to win and South returned the hearts, finesse the 8, which East won and returned his last heart, which was won in Dummy. Now Mr. Vanderbilt led the spade ten, which East refused to win, but because he would not hold. Next the club Knave was led from the Dummy and East refused to put up his King. This was followed by the play of two more rounds of clubs. Now Mr. Vanderbilt, from the closed hand, led his remaining diamond, which he trumped with Dummy's Ace and East was forced to discard one of his trumps. The spade nine was then led from the Dummy but East was helpless. Although he had held 5 trumps originally and the Declarer held but 4, he made none of them.

The strip play is both beautiful and unusual. It is exceptionally unusual when an adverse hand is stripped of all cards but trumps and then is forced to discard one of these, which, but for the accuracy of the Declarer, would have been a winner. (Copyright, 1931, for The Constitution.)

QUESTIONS ANSWERED. Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer questions on bidding and play of hands sent in by readers. Address him at care of this newspaper, enclosing a two-cent stamp, self-addressed envelope.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(P)—The new federal building at Monroe, La., will be located on the corner of Grammont and Jackson streets. Assistant Secretary Heath said the property, 107 feet by 200 feet, was offered the government by Mrs. Sallie R. Ruffin and J. Q. Graves for $95,000.

INSTALLMENT XLV.

"You shall withdraw that. You shall withdraw that at once in this lady's presence," Kringlein shouted. "Who are you to presume to insult me? Who do you think you are talking to? Do you think I am dirt? And if I am dirt you are a great deal dirtier, Herr General-director. So now you know all you are dirt, dirt!"

Both men now stood face to face glaring at each other in a frenzy of rage and abusing each other as hard as they could go.

Flammchen was sitting there all the time listening and her eyes went from one to the other. "What do you want of me exactly? I don't know anything whatever about you. You came in here," Preysing said in a chilling nasal voice, "you have the impudence to come in here and talk like a bolshevik." "You don't know me. Quite so. But I know you well enough. I knew you long ago when you first came to Frederick and lodged in the bootmaker's back bedroom and owed money to my father-in-law for butter and sausage. I remember when you began courting the old man's daughter. And if any of us made such blunders in little things as you have made in big ones he would have had the sack long ago. And when in 1912 there was an error in my books for the first and only time, and I was docked of three hundred and ten marks—the tone in which you reprimanded me was something I shall never forget. And the eight hundred workmen you dismissed, they curse you to this day, that's certain, and when you came along in your motor car and open the exhaust so that we get our belchful of stink, then you think yourself somebody. But I tell you—"

Kringlein had got switched on to a side track. He poured out all the experiences and all the years of his life. Preysing, on his side, completely incapable of any sympathetic understanding, fell deeper and deeper into ungovernable rage. When Kringlein mentioned the money he had owed in his earlier days to the greasy provision deal, Sauerkatz, his head positively swam and he was afraid of a stroke. He heard himself gasp for breath. In one stride he was on top of Kringlein. He seized him by the waistcoat and shook him like a rat. Kringlein's hat fell off his head. Preysing deliberately trod it under foot and, throwing Kringlein against the wall, tore open the door.

"Enough he shouted. 'Not another word. Outside. At once. You shall be dismissed. I dismiss you. You're dismissed, dismissed from this moment—'"

Kringlein, his face white as a sheet, began to laugh with his mouth wide open; he laughed in Preysing's furious face. "You dismiss me? You threaten me? But you cannot dismiss me. You can do nothing to me at all, nothing at all. I am ill. Dangerously ill. I tell you. I have got to die. I can only live a week or two. No one can do anything to me. I shall be dead before you can dismiss me," he cried, as he shook with laughter and at the same time tears streamed in his eyes. "Man, are you crazy?" Preysing said in a lowered voice. "I believe the man is still laughing. I believe he'd glad to be dangerously ill. Are you drunk?"

At these words Kringlein became sober of a sudden and fell into reflection. He stood a moment longer, and his eyes took in the hotel room with a fleeting glance. He saw Flammchen standing in a ray of sun at the window, the corporal and sobered general director with his hands in his pockets. Everything trembled indistinctly through the involuntary tears that obscured his eyes and showed his emotional condition. He took up his trampled hat from the floor and made a dash for it.

"I hope the young lady will forgive the intrusion," he said to Flammchen once again, in his high-pitched, pleading voice. "Get out," was all Preysing said. But Kringlein had gone already.

Suddenly the general director ran to the door, pulled it open, and trumpeting like an angry elephant, trumpeted down the silent corridor. "You won't escape. I'll have you watched. We'll see who you stole the money to idle about here on. You communist—you swindler—you impudent cur. I'll have you locked up—locked up—"

But there was nothing more to be seen or heard of Kringlein. "After all he was decent enough."

He was actually crying at the end," Flammchen said in conclusion. Preysing was sitting on the sofa in Flammchen's room, in No. 72. "You are sweet," he said, but he did not venture to move from where he was. "But won't you say 'darling' to me? Please, do."

Flammchen shook her head emphatically. "Oh, no," she said. "Not no. I can't do it. I can't really. You are a stranger to me, so how can I call you 'darling'? To call you 'darling' is impossible. 'You're an odd creature, Flammchen,' said Preysing. 'You take some knowing.'"

"Not odd in the least," said Flammchen with an obstinate pout of the lips. "One must think of the future." "One must think of the future," she tried to explain. "I can go with you to England. If I meet you in six months' time, I shall say, 'Good-day, Herr General-director.' And you will say, 'That is the little typist I took with me to Manchester. And that will be all right. But it wouldn't be very pleasant, would it, if I met you with your wife and said, 'Hello, darling, how goes it?'"

The general director positively shivered up at this. To be reminded at this moment of his Mülle at home was complete discomfiture. He sat down on the nearest chair and sighed. The chair sighed, too. Boards creaked, furniture groaned and doors banged at every encounter with Preysing's heavy person. He drew Flammchen on to his knees. She stroked Preysing's hair to which the Berlin barber had given a stylish cut the day before and a pleasing fragrance. She got up from her uncomfortable perch on Preysing's knees and walked back a step or two.

"And now the letters, Herr General-director."

It was late in the evening. An echo of dance music from the Yellow Pavilion vibrated in a quiver of melody through every wall of the Grand hotel.

In No. 68 a typewriter rattled on without mercy. The representative of an American film company had taken up his quarters there after Grusin-akava left. The bell of the machine could be heard in No. 70, where Kringlein sat in his bath and watched the antics of a tablet of bath salts on the white enamel. He was sad. The day had been poor and disappointing. The explanation with Preysing had cost him much and left him prostrate and done up. And, worst of all, Gaigen, the dynamo, this source of energy, this vitalizing and warm-blooded and untrammelled fellow with his 120-miles-an-hour pace had vanished from his sight. Kringlein, as he lay in the pain-assuaging hot water, felt that he had read the last page of his life and turned it over, and that now there came nothing more, nothing, nothing more.

Page boy No. 18, Karl Nispe, knocked at the door of No. 69. Although he had seen Baron Gaigen take his key a quarter of an hour before and go up to his room, there was no reply from within. He pressed down the handle of the inner door. It was open, but the room was empty. He went silently out.

A faint echo of the music in the Yellow Pavilion could be detected even in the room that General Director Preysing had engaged for his secretary.

"Yes, I heard it a long while. Music," said Flammchen, "it's nice to hear it in the distance."

"Music? No. Didn't you hear anything else?" Kringlein asked. He made a somewhat distraught impression as he sat upright and listened. "I can hear something all the same," he said anxiously.

"What? Where?" Flammchen asked.

"I heard a knocking of some sort," Preysing pointed and stared fixedly at the wall of his room next door. "I must go and see—" he said, and disappeared into the hallway.

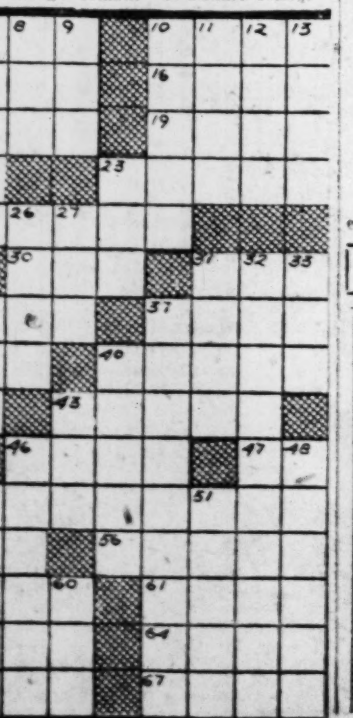

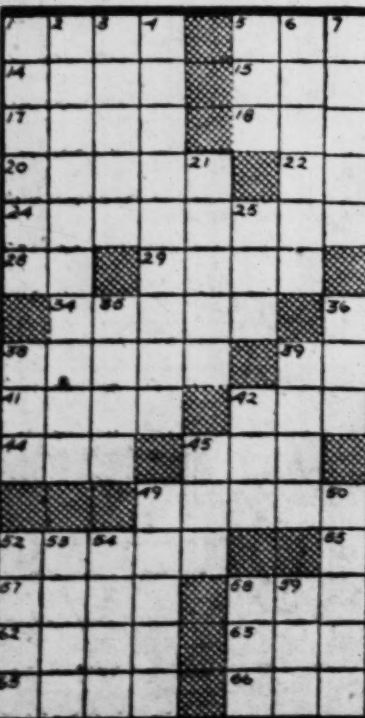

Preysing stood still for a moment between the outer and inner doors of his room and felt for the switch without success. He then felt his way on and suddenly came to a stop, dazed and breathless. He knew for a certainty that he had turned off the light, but now the light was on. It showed like a thread under the door.

HARRY REICHENBACH, PUBLICITY AGENT, DIES

Scholar of P. T. Barnum
Passes After Lingering Illness.

NEW YORK, July 3.—(P)—Harry Reichenbach, who as a circus wail learned about publicity in P. T. Barnum's school and became one of the highest paid press agents in the world, died in his fifty-third year today after a lingering illness.

Graduating from circus life, he recognized the infant movie industry as a rich field for exploitation. Friends credited him with "discovering" Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Clara Kimball Young and with making Barbara La Marr and Francis X. Bushman famous.

He gave Rudolph Valentino his job and was at various times personal publicity man for Gloria Swanson, Wallace Reid, Thomas Meighan, Ethel Barrymore, Charlie Chaplin and Pola Negri.

SIR WILLIAM DYKE.
DAITFORD, Kent, England, July 3.—(P)—Sir William Hart Dyke, a political figure of the golden era of Gladstone and Disraeli, died today at his home. He was 94.

Lady Dyke, who is ill, was not informed of his death. He was a great sportsman, owning an estate of 9,000 acres, and was credited as one of the originators of lawn tennis. He represented this division in parliament from 1885-1906, but held his first post from West Kent in 1865.

E. L. LESLEY.
HAINES CITY, Fla., July 3.—(P)—E. L. Lesley, mayor of Haines City for the last three years, died last night at the age of 65. Born in Tennessee, he moved to Kissimmee in the early '90s and entered the live stock business. He served as clerk of the circuit court there and as a member of the Osceola county commission before coming here. Survivors include his widow, six children, a sister and three brothers. Funeral services will be held today.

J. WARREN ROCKWELL.
DELAND, Fla., July 3.—(P)—J. Warren Rockwell, 62, father of Norman Rockwell, famous artist and illustrator, died here today.

Rockwell, who lived at New Rochelle, N. Y., had been in failing health for some time. He is survived by the widow, Nancy Rockwell, Norman Rockwell, and another son, Jarvis W. Rockwell Jr.

MRS. H. F. DURWARD.
BATON ROUGE, La., July 3.—(P)—Mrs. H. F. Durward, wife of the Associated Press correspondent at Memphis, Tenn., died in a local hospital today from injuries received in a wreck in an automobile accident near Clinton, La.

Mr. Durward, and his daughter, Miss Sarah Durward, have been at Mrs. Durward's side since the accident, and are expected to take the body to Memphis for burial tonight or tomorrow.

Mrs. Durward suffered multiple fractures when an automobile in which she was returning to Memphis after visiting a sister in Baton Rouge, skidded in loose gravel. For a while it was thought she would recover but her condition during the past two days took a turn for the worse.

DR. WILLIAM KEISTER.
BALTIMORE, July 3.—(P)—Dr. William S. Keister, Maryland deputy state health officer, former director of the board of sanitation and health of Alabama, died today at Walter Reed hospital, Washington, following an operation.

Dr. Keister, for a time, was connected with the marine hospital at Wilmington, N. C., and after his service with the A. E. F. in France in the World War, had a post with the Virginia department of health and then became professor of public health at the University of Virginia.

Later he was public health officer at Decatur, Ill.

KANSAS OPENS 'WAR' ON DOHERTY COMPANY

TOPEKA, Kan., July 3.—(P)—The state of Kansas, seeking a 10-cent reduction in gas rates to consumers, has initiated an offensive against the Henry L. Doherty interests.

A plea of Doherty representatives for a four-day extension until next Monday of the time in which to reply formally to his request for a voluntary decrease was branded by Governor Harry H. Woodring yesterday as "tantamount" to refusal "to accede to the public demand for a readjustment of gas rates."

Virtually simultaneously, the Kansas banking department announced withdrawal of its approval of stock listed on the New York Curb Exchange by the Cities Service Company, a holding company in the Doherty group. An exception was made, however, for the company's first preferred stock. The action bars sale of the stock in Kansas. It becomes effective tomorrow.

DOHERTY SEEKING WAY TO REAT BARRING MOVE

NEW YORK, July 3.—(P)—At the New York offices of Henry L. Doherty today it was said that Cities Service Company was giving consideration to the legal steps to be taken immediately to enjoin the state banking department of Kansas from enforcing its order barring all stock issues of Cities Service, except its first preferred, from sale in Kansas.

It was added that the order of the state banking department was considered to be entirely arbitrary and without just cause.

MAN KILLS WOMAN AFTER 5-HOUR WAIT

BALTIMORE, July 3.—(P)—Shot by a man who waited five hours for an appointment, Mrs. Sophie Lowery, 35, died at a hospital today.

Bertram R. Yeatman, 40, then turned his pistol on himself, but inflicted only a slight wound. The shooting occurred late yesterday as Mrs. Lowery arrived in an automobile with another man at the appointed meeting place, a street corner.

Yeatman said he planned to divorce his wife and marry Mrs. Lowery. Yesterday morning she informed him, for the first time, he said, that she was married. She was to meet him again shortly, but failed to return for five hours.

Yeatman was held on a charge of murder.

Application Disapproved.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(P)—Denial of the application of A. R. Murray and T. P. Singletary, for authority to construct a new broadcasting station at Baton Rouge, La., was recommended to the radio commission today by Examiner Hyde. The examiner said the proposed new station would interfere with KTBS at Shreveport.

Fire Alarm Serves Slashed Negro Well

CHICAGO, July 3.—(P)—The situation seemed to Jesse James, a negro, to call for alarm.

Hence James, who said he arrived here a few days ago from Highwood, N. C., pulled a fire alarm box signal and waited.

With sirens screaming the apparatus arrived at the scene. There was no fire but James was sitting on a curb, nursing a multitude of knife wounds.

"Did you turn in a false alarm?" asked Battalion Chief Jerry Falvey. "Yes, sir," replied James. "I turned in the alarm, but it wasn't a false one. I was walking along the street when a big man with a knife jumped out at me. There were others with him, all with knives. They all slashed me."

James was taken to a hospital.

2 FLORIDIANS KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

FORT PIERCE, Fla., July 3.—(P)—Charles M. Warren, president of the Fort Pierce Bank & Trust Company, and C. D. Rooker, motor car dealer, were killed early today when their automobile crashed through a bridge and plunged into Indian river.

H. D. Reynolds, real estate operator, who also was in the car, jumped from the machine before it struck the water and was saved.

Adams Appointed.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—(P)—The appointment of John T. Adams of Dubuque, Iowa, to the advisory board of the Inland Waterways Corporation was announced today by Secretary Bailey of the war department. The appointment, effective July 24, is to fill a vacancy caused by the expiration of the term of S. S. Thorpe, of Minneapolis.

Morgan to Sail.
GLEN COVE, N. Y., July 3.—(P)—J. P. Morgan, financier, will leave for London in about two weeks aboard his yacht Comar for his annual cruise to his English country home, it was announced today.

NEWLY UNITED CHURCH FAVORS BIRTH CONTROL

Participation by U. S. in World Court Is Also Urged.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 3.—(P)—The newly organized general council of the Congregational and Christian churches was on record today as approving "voluntary parentage" through birth control.

By a nearly unanimous vote, the convention yesterday endorsed findings of a seminar committee favoring birth control.

The council also went on record favoring recognition of soviet Russia, taken after Colonel Raymond Robins, New York, made a plea which swung the delegates away from an attack on communism by the Rev. J. Burford Parry, Willesley, Mass.

Participation by the United States in the League of Nations and the World Court was urged.

"We believe in the right of children to be wanted and the right of husbands and wives to assume parenthood," read the report on birth control. "Therefore, we favor the principle of voluntary child bearing, believing that it sacramentalizes physical union and safeguards the well being of the family and society."

ALABAMA CONVICTIONS PROTESTED IN SOVIET
MOSCOW, July 3.—(P)—The protests of five members of the Academy of Science of Leningrad against the conviction and death sentence of eight negroes in Scottsboro, Ala., were published today by Izvestia, semi-official newspaper. The academicians declare the penalty unjust and a symbol of class discrimination in America.

Izvestia says that it is receiving hundreds of protests from workers and others in many parts of the soviet union.

"This act cannot be understood by men of normal psychology but anything can be explained by the fact that where such legal actions as those against the followers of Darwin took place," the paper says.

Eight negroes are under sentence of death at Scottsboro, Ala., after being convicted of criminal assault on two young white women.

WOMAN EX-OFFICIAL FACES PRISON TERM

BAKER, Ore., July 3.—(P)—Convicted of embezzling $108,205.13 of the city's funds, Mrs. Emma Fowler, former LaGrange (Ore.) city treasurer, today faced the possibility of a 1-to-15-year prison sentence and a fine of twice the sum for which she allegedly failed to account. She was convicted by a circuit court jury here last night.

Presiding Circuit Judge Hall S. Lusk, who set next Tuesday for passing sentence, said it was mandatory upon him to fine Mrs. Fowler twice the sum she embezzled.

Mrs. Fowler served as LaGrange city treasurer for 12 years. Her office was eliminated under a consolidation early this year. Investigations of the books led to her arrest in February.

FIRST PERFORMANCE AT FOX AT 11 TODAY

Owing to the new program which opens at the Fox theater today being somewhat longer than usual, Manager Carter Barron announced Friday night that the performance this morning would begin one hour earlier than usual.

The first show will, therefore, commence at 11 o'clock, with the feature picture, "A Free Soul," starring Norma Shearer, going on at 11:30; the Bobby Jones golf picture beginning at 1:20, and the stage show, Fanchon & Marco's "Top o' the World" idea beginning at 1:30.

New Screen, Stage Programs At Atlanta Theaters Today

Norma Shearer admires her favorite in her latest production, "A Free Soul," on the new program opening at the Fox theater this morning. In this picture Miss Shearer has an entire new type of story, bringing out facets of her art hitherto undisclosed to the theater-going public.

It is the story of an ultra-modern girl who defies all the prejudices and edicts of society, declaring that she is free to live and love as she pleases. The story works to a tremendously dramatic climax and has been acclaimed by all who have seen it as one of the most fascinating of the year's talking screen offerings.

On the Fox stage the new Fanchon & Marco idea is called "Top o' the World," dealing with adventures on a huge dirigible. The always beautiful sun-kissed dancing girls have novel routines, and a group of clever principals, headed by Gene Morgan, make the production a sparkling bit of stage delight.

Enrico Leide conducting the Fox concert orchestra. Al Evans at the organ and exceptional screen shorts complete the bill.

"SMART MONEY" SCREEN
FEATURE AT GEORGIA
Keith's Georgia today begins a new stage and screen show with "Smart Money" at the head of the program which also includes a pretentious vaudeville bill.

"Smart Money" has all the earmarks in title and cast of being a gang picture—excepting that it actually isn't a story of gangdom, but a comedy concerning one "Nick the Barber," a small-town gambler and barber who adventures to the big city in search of big gambling money and blondes, who are his main weakness.

The "Smart Money" cast includes Edward G. Robinson, James Cagney, Evelyn Knapp, Noel Francis, Morgan Wallace, Margaret Livingston and many other screen celebrities.

In addition to the laughs to be found in "Smart Money," the new Georgia show promises a wealth of short comedy subjects.

comedy in the vaudeville bill. It is headlined by Sammy Lewis and Patti Moore in "South Sea Sadie." Clara Barry and Orval Whitledge are also on the bill in a strongly featured position. Carlena Diamond, beautiful harpist and novel dancer, and the Crystal Trio complete the vaudeville end of the new show.

CAPITOL PRESENTS

"LOVER COME BACK"
"Lover Come Back," the daring and sophisticated comedy of married life, heads the new program opening this morning at the Capitol. Made by Columbia, the picture is reported as one of the most startling and brilliantly made talkies of the smarter type.

Betty Bronson, Constance Cummings and Jack Mulhall head the cast of popular players. It is the story of a stenographer who decides that she'll abandon the usual code of sex when the man she loves deserts her to marry another and "take her love" wherever she can find it. Needless to say, the story develops through the awakening to realization of her false reasoning, her attempt at self-sacrifice for the sake of the man she really loves and finally the happiness of the denouement.

In addition to the feature the Capitol presents carefully selected added attractions, including newsreel and short comedy subjects.

Texas' Life Is Lost By Misstep in Dark

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 3.—(P)—G. W. Crowder, 73, of Joshua, Texas, died at a Memphis hospital today, three hours after he was injured when he walked out of a second story window in a Wynne (Ark.) hotel. He was said to have risen in the darkness to get a glass of water and, mistaking a window for a door, fell to the ground 10 feet below.

His grandson, Murray Crowder, 18, who was with him at Wynne, drove him here. He did not consider his grandfather's injuries serious and left alone by automobile for Nashville before the aged man died.

WALES OPENS MEETING OF ENGLISH SCHOOLS
LONDON, July 3.—(P)—The Prince of Wales opened the congress of universities of the empire today with the declaration that London had long been the financial clearing house of the world "but today she can claim to be the educational clearing house, not of the world then of a very considerable part."

A century ago, the prince added, the British empire had only eight universities. Seventy are represented at the present congress.

INJURED AT BASEBALL, YOUTH BELIEVED DYING

John Echols, 15, Undergoes Operation Following Collision During Game.

John Echols, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Echols, of 903 Highland View, baseball and football star at the Bass Junior High school, was said to be in a dying condition Friday night at the Crawford Long hospital as the result of injuries received Thursday in a baseball game at Piedmont park.

An emergency operation was performed at the hospital late Thursday night and doctors Friday feared an internal hemorrhage. Echols' father told hospital attendants that another player ran into his son when the latter, playing shortstop, was covering first base on an attempted steal, the runner's head striking him in the side.

Echols continued to play, however, despite his pain, till he reached the verge of collapse.

HARVEY HUNGSTON ARRESTED IN ROBBERIES

Two Men Indicted 9 Times for Holdups and Pistol-Carrying.

A series of recent robberies found their way into the Fulton superior court Friday when the retiring grand jury of the May term returned nine indictments against two white men connecting them with five robberies, and adding the additional charges of carrying pistols, and that of auto theft against one of them.

The two were W. L. Harvey, alias W. L. Walker, and Jack Livingston, alias J. M. Walker. They were jointly indicted on the following robbery charges: On June 27, robbing J. A. Armstrong, of 131 Central avenue, of $245; on June 20, robbing F. M. Taylor at the Hanover shoe store, at 47 Peachtree street, of $125; robbing H. L. Duffee at the Pay-and-Take Grocery store, at 127 Courtland street, of $230 on June 16; and on June 13, holding up D. S. Smith at the Newark shoe store at 46 Marietta street, taking $30 and a bill folder.

Livingston was indicted for the robbery of Raleigh Crawford, on June 13, of $85 in the George Muse clothing store branch on the Edgewood. He also was indicted on a charge of carrying a pistol on June 28, and with assault and intent to murder Marshall Meek, 38-1/2 Decatur street, on June 27.

W. L. Harvey was indicted for carrying a pistol on June 28, and on a charge of intent to murder, alleged to have been stolen on October 28, 1930, from H. E. Edge, 205 Robinson place.

The grand jury also returned a true bill charging murder to Annie Hawkins for the fatal stabbing on June 30 of Camella Harris, W. A. Gillette and C. S. Corcoran, who were slain by the grand jury of charges of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the death of W. C. Eads on February 13, 1931, at the residence of the victim at Courtland street and Forrest avenue.

JENTZEN AGAIN HEADS SANITARY DEPARTMENT

John J. Jentzen, veteran chief of the Atlanta borough sanitary department, Friday afternoon was re-elected to that post for the next year by the sanitary committee of council and Miss Willea Osborne was named secretary to the committee for another term.

W. O. Anderson was designated as acting chief in the absence of Jentzen on vacations or in case of illness or other absence from his duties.

Jentzen has been connected with the department for the past 33 years, and was praised Friday afternoon by committee members for his efficient department heads of the corporation.

NEGRO ROBBER NABBED AND ANOTHER ROUTED

One negro burglar was captured and another driven off by pistol fire Friday morning in an attempt to enter a grocery operated by J. G. Gledhill, at 479 McDaniel street. The negroes were discovered trying to force the door of the establishment by Dr. R. S. George, 478 McDaniel street, who fired, probably wounding one of them, he said. Police later captured a negro who was hiding nearby. Dr. George identified him as one of the pair, police said.

PETITION FOR CHARTER

GEORGIA. FULTON COUNTY. TO THE SUPERIOR COURT OF SAID COUNTY.

The petition of CLIFF C. HATCHER, JR., and HARRY B. HALLMAN, of Fulton County, Georgia, respectfully sheweth:

(1) That petitioners, as associates, successors and assigns desire to incorporate for a term of years and upon the expiration of which the corporation shall be dissolved, and to issue stock of the par value of one hundred ($100.00) dollars each, and to issue such stock as may be necessary in the conduct of their business.

The capital stock of said corporation shall be five thousand ($5,000.00) shares of the par value of one hundred ($100.00) dollars each, divided into fifty (50) shares of the par value of one hundred ($100.00) dollars each. Petitioners desire the privilege of establishing and operating a corporation, and to issue such stock as may be necessary in the conduct of their business.

Blanchette Files Suit For Injury From Foul Play

Charging that the players of the Spiller club are built too close to the foul lines and that no proper fence is placed for the protection of spectators, the Blanchette family has filed a suit for $25,000 against the Atlanta Baseball Amusement Company for alleged injury received when he was struck by a ball on April 6.

In the suit for damages Rosenberg alleges that he bought a 50-cent ticket to the game between the Cardinals and the Atlanta Crackers and that while sitting in the bleachers he was struck over the kidney by a foul ball. Rosenberg, a tailor, charges negligence in the construction of the stands too close to the foul line. He asks for $25,000 for his injury.

"At the morning hour, the action of the court will be heard," Rosenberg says. "The court will hear the evidence. Rosenberg says he was struck over the kidney by a foul ball. Rosenberg, a tailor, charges negligence in the construction of the stands too close to the foul line. He asks for $25,000 for his injury."
